D. HOTS (Higher Order Thinking Skills) Questions

1. What is the importance of monuments to you as a student of history?
2. Why are more sources available for the study of the medieval period as compared to the ancient period?

- D. 1. As a student of history, I regard monuments as a description of vision and interests of the rulers towards enriching the culture and talent. It also demonstrates the strengths of a particular phase in history.
2. During the medieval period, due to the invention of paper, written documents in 13th century are available. They throw light on the life of the people, the administration and military exploits of different rulers. These are the main reasons that we have more information about the medieval period than the ancient period.
